Continuation of 3. NOTE: The claims have been amended to read on a method for identifying a compound that inhibits p21 induced senescence wherein a cell is assyed for induction of a gene in the presence of p21 expression. Hence, the scope of the claims has been narrowed from a consideration of any senescence associated change to only those related to p21 expression. As well, the amended claims require the gene to be assayed be induced directly by p21 whereas previously the presence of p21 in the cell was not required for execution of the method. Rather, a gene capable of being induced by p21 could be assayed for expression during senescence in the presence or absence of a compound to be tested. Therefore the method was previously directed to methods of detecting induction of marker genes under conditions of senscence and are now drawn to methods of detecting induction by p21under conditions of p21 mediated senescence.

Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: applicants' arguments are moot in view of the non-entry of the amendment.

Continuation of 13. Other: It is noted that had applicants amendment been entered, the claim objections as well as the rejection under 35 USC 112, first and second would have been overcome.
